Skills and Experience: I'm an editor and writer for a news website, gazettereview.com. Most of the pieces are fluff, but I do get to do some game critiques and analysis from time to time. My work at the gazette does not take up too much of my time, and I still make a decent living out of it. I would relish the opportunity to write, or as the case might be, re-write some of the clunkier dialogue present in Morrowind. While the game is unquestionably a masterpiece, there is no denying that it falls a little short in the writing department.

In my spare time I write scenarios for tabletop games,for which I also DM. The work not only entails writing, but acting and world building.
