Skills and Experience: I have been a small time writer for a few years, however I have had few opportunities to prove myself as a story writer for a video game. Most of the work I have done has consisted of promotional pieces and scripts (one of which is linked below as the second proof)

The first proof of skills is a reference to a challenge I participated in. The aim of this challenge was to write a story about an apocalypse or cataclysm in 200 words or less over the course of 10 minutes.

the second proof (the pitch script) comes from an indiegogo campaign that never actually went anywhere however I kept the script as proof of some of my past promotional work.

I have vast experience with the elder scrolls lore having first encountered the series in 1997 when I purchased Arena and Daggerfall, later moving on to Morrowind in 2002, Oblivion in 2006 and of course Skyrim in 2011. As a writer the thing I love the most about the series is its deep lore.
