Skills and Experience: I currently work as a Live Producer for Riot Games (League of Legends). My summoner name is Riot Rocofu. I'm in charge and responsible for the live and proper function for both the Latin America North and Latin America South servers (LAN and LAS). Not only this, but I'm also in charge of vendor management for the live support of these two regions as well as large scale projects meant to improve on regional connectivity, player experience and overall health. I'm also in charge of overall management for the construction of a new Riot Games office in Mexico City. I'm familiar with several project management methods including basic Agile methods.

I graduated as a mechatronics engineer. I know and can work with several 3D modelling CAD software. Usually I would create mechanical models for high complexity assemblies and the sort but I'm sure I could pick up on gaming 3D modelling software and work with it.

I've also dabbled in coding, but mind you, pretty basic. I can work a mean Visual Basic for excel and I've tried learning other coding languages such as java, c++, html but had very little opportunity to use them so I'm quite rusty.

At Riot I also work very closely and often participate with the localization and translation of all the game assets, articles, news, emergent messaging, voice overs, etc from english to spanish. I'd also like to help in making Skywind available in spanish.

Although I may not be an artist (I do make "good" paint drawings), I enjoy my position as producer because it lets me be part, work with and learn from the many disciplines for a game. I will definitely bring that same passion and drive to this project.
